Indigenous Access Admission Policy

Science North envisions a future where reconciliation is meaningfully embedded in all aspects of its work and in which relationships with Indigenous Peoples, visitors and communities are built on a foundation of mutual respect, trust and dialogue for the benefit of all. To deliver on our commitment towards honouring Truth and Reconciliation and the 94 Calls to Action outlined in the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's Report, we are providing complimentary admission for Indigenous People (self-identifying First Nations, Métis and Inuit people) to access Science North and Dynamic Earth.

Science North believes that everyone should have access to science learning and the unique experiences we offer at our science centres, attractions, programs and facilities. In order to provide equitable access to all Peoples, we will be launching our Science For All Fund in the near future, that will allow community members, groups, and schools the opportunity to experience our facilities and services without barriers.

Please visit our admission desk during regular hours to obtain your ticket(s).

Please note this does not include parking, IMAX® films, the Planetarium, special events or programming such as camps or Nightlife on the Rocks.
